Dear Missions Coordinator,

I bring you very good news. I want you to be an eyewitness to a growing movement of evangelism, discipleship and church planting in the huge, African island nation of Madagascar.

For years, we have been impressed by the zeal and tenacity of national staff members and JESUS film workers on the island. Despite overwhelming obstacles, they are committed to saturating Madagascar with the gospel to reach nearly 23 million people, through JESUS. This is why we recently sent a small video crew to the island.

You'll see the challenges they face, and experience the responsiveness when people hear the gospel, when at last they can watch JESUS in their heart language.

I especially want you to meet Rene Rasolonjanahary. Almost singlehandedly, through prayer and tireless work, this humble servant of God is mobilizing a nationwide movement to saturate the nation with JESUS. But it won't be an easy task.

While Madagascar is a beautiful and exotic country, outside the major cities the roads are terrible. Sometimes it takes a film team eight hours just to reach one group of villages. But staff members have devised a solution—a network of hundreds of trained disciples, church leaders and pastors who already live in these difficult-to-reach areas.

These local disciples and workers are willing and ready. JESUS is available in the 11 languages of Madagascar. The only thing they lack are lightweight, highly portable equipment sets to show JESUS. Once they have this equipment, and present JESUS, people who have walked in spiritual darkness all their lives respond, saying "yes" to Jesus. This nine-minute video will explain all.

Missions Coordinator, it's my prayer that once you have watched, you'll want to help supply one or more sets of the needed equipment, to reach Madagascar and nearby nations. May I also encourage you to share this moving video with your pastor, your church, or fellowship group. Invite them to join with you, and help reach millions of people with the gospel. Thank you so much.

In grateful partnership with you,
